Apollo 11 blasted off from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Wednesday morning, July 16 for its journey to the earth's natural satellite. On Sunday afternoon, July 20, the lunar module "Eagle" landed on the moon's surface at 4:17:42 (EDT). At 10:56 that evening Astronaut Armstrong became the first man to set foot on the moon's surface. He was followed 20 minutes later by Astronaut Aldrin, as the third member of the Apollo team, Collins, circled the moon in the command module "Columbia". They returned to the lunar module after over two hours on the moon's surface. Monday afternoon Armstrong and Aldrin rejoined Collins in moon orbit and, after jettisoning the lunar module, started the two and one-half day return trip to the earth at about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Apollo 11 splashed down in the Pacific Ocean at about 12:50 (EDT) this Thursday noon, about 1,200 miles southwest of Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blake and son, Lee, returned Monday after spending eleven days traveling in the western United States. They flew from Maine to Denver, Colo., where they met Mr. and Mrs. David Brown (Bunny Blake) and family and traveled with them.

BETHEL SNOW TWISTERS

People interested in helping on the Bethel Snow Twisters Mollycoddett Day float are needed and are invited to a meeting at Sunday River Inn on Wednesday evening, July 30 at 7 o'clock. Planning for the picnic will also be discussed. It isn't far off and a lot is still to be done. Please attend as some fresh ideas are needed.

WHO'S GOT THE KETTLES?

Three large aluminum kettles are missing from the Methodist Church kitchen. Would the person or persons who borrowed (?) these kettles please return them at once to the kitchen. They are needed for a supper soon. These kettles should not be borrowed without permission.

SPECIAL MEETING FOR S. A. D. 44 SCHEDULED FOR TUESDAY, JULY 29

A special meeting of the voters of Maine School Administrative District 44 will be held at Telstar Regional High School next Tuesday evening, April 29. The purpose of the 7:30 meeting will be to decide what use is to be made of $12,197 in additional State operating subsidy made available by the Legislature after the current year's district budget was approved.

Voters will have the choice of making the money available for expending this year; use the funds to reduce each town's liability to the district, or to carry the amount forward to apply it to the 1970 budget.

It is reported that the 1970 state subsidy will be about $40,000 less than was originally estimated for the current year.

COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

There will be a meeting of town officials at Norway next Wednesday evening to discuss ambulance service in this area.

The State has awarded a grant to the South Paris-Norway area for a cost study of proposed plans for ambulance service. State representatives will be present. There may be some benefit to Bethel as a result.

Work is nearing completion on the Smith Bridge. The abutments have been rebuilt and most of the steel work is in place. It should be ready for travel the first of the week.

The figures will be ready Monday night so that the assessors can set the tax rate for 1969. We will have a gain of a little over $400,000 in valuation this year. This would indicate a rate of from $42 to $43 per thousand.

BRIDGE BEING BUILT — Work commenced this week on the construction on the so-called "Smith Bridge" over Pleasant River. Construction of the structure was authorized by Bethel voters at the 1969 annual meeting. At the same meeting local voters approved the laying out of a town way 50 feet in width west from the West Bethel Flat Road to the Mason town line. Above are shown Leroy Buck, R. S. McMillin and Tim Ramage (left to right), as work progresses on the project Tuesday afternoon.

The photo below shows progress on the bridge up this Thursday noon, with steel stringers in place.

The former structure spanning the stream was removed on Monday. The new bridge, as well as utilizing existing abutments, will have steel posts to the river bottom and steel stringers with a roadway of three-inch hemlock planks.

The project is under the supervision of Bob Davis, Bethel road foreman.

MAY BE HAPPY COINCIDENCE — BUT MOON DAY WAS LOCAL YOUTH'S IDEA LAST APRIL

Paul Farrar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farrar of Spring St., Bethel, felt as far back as last spring that the day American astronauts set foot on the moon should be declared a national holiday. The 12-year-old had written President Nixon in early April suggesting the holiday.

Six weeks later a reply from a presidential assistant informed him that "although certain holidays are of course observed practically everywhere in our country, there are in fact no holidays designated as 'national'. Each state has jurisdiction over the holidays it will observe."

There is nothing to keep a president from requesting an observance, however, and Paul was "delighted" when President Nixon did.

bearing on the president's decision, "I don't think so," says the seventh grade student. "Other people had the same idea, I guess."

Paul observed Moon Day on Monday of this week in front of a television set, careful not to miss a bit of the action.

Mr. and Mrs. William Von Zintz left Tuesday by plane for Hannover, West Germany, called there by the death of Mr. Von Zintz's sister.

STATE POLICE INSITUTE SEVEN NEW PROGRAMS

Governor Kenneth M. Curtis has announced that the Maine State Police has initiated seven new programs or activities for the first six months of 1969. The programs range from inservice training to new highway safety programs.

The seven programs or activities are:
—Inservice training program pertaining to proper methods of identifying various types of narcotics and drugs. This program was attended by all State Police uniformed personnel.

—A formal 12-week training program for the purpose of training 35 new recruits to the department.

—A new highway safety program to concentrate police activities during peak traffic hours and hours of high accident frequency. This would also entail maximum use of the department's radar capabilities.

—The initiation of new internal inspection programs for the purpose of making a self-appraisal of each troop and its supervisory staff throughout the department, directed toward a goal of establishing better procedures that would ultimately result in more efficiency.

—A new enforcement program relating to public nuisances (junk yards) throughout the state. This program was directed at cleaning up eyesores in the form of junk automobiles on private property.

—Inservice training program relating to report writing and search and seizure.

—The initiation of a new radar program which involves the purchase of new radar equipment through a federal grant program.

TELSTAR SCIENCE TEACHER ATTENDING PHYSICS COURSE AT RENSSLAER INSTITUTE

Timothy M. Kersey, a science teacher at Telstar Regional High School, is presently attending a special eight-week course at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. The summer program, which began on June 23, is designed to acquaint secondary teachers with Harvard Project Physics, a new concept in teaching physics to high school students.

Developed by a group of scientists and high school teachers throughout the nation, Project Physics is a new kind of physics course intended to appeal to a wider variety of students than those now offered in many schools. Designed for both the science-oriented and the science-shy, the major goal of Project Physics is to reach the large and growing number of students now taking no physics course at all.

The program that Mr. Kersey, who resides at Paradise Hill in Bethel, is involved in is divided into three sections. First, the teachers will receive the necessary background in physics, astronomy and the history and philosophy of science. This will be presented by the diverse staff of Rensselaer professors involved in the program, which includes both professors of physics and a professor of philosophy.

Next, the problems of teaching the essentials of physics to high school students will be discussed. Then, in the final segment of the program, the participants will be introduced to the wide variety of educational materials developed by Project Physics to help students absorb this knowledge. These materials include such things as student laboratory guides, experiments, tests, programmed instructions and film loops.

The Harvard Project Physics program is made possible by a grant from the National Science Foundation. One of over 1000 such NSF grants annually directed towards improving the subject-matter background of science teachers at all levels, it takes the form of stipends paid directly to the participating teachers.

Rensselaer, located in Troy, New York, was founded in 1824 and was the first college in the English speaking world to grant degrees in science and engineering. The school's enrollment is approximately 3,700 undergraduate and 1,200 graduate students, who hail from virtually every state and nearly 50 foreign nations.

19,445 ATTEND CONFERENCES ON U-M, ORONO CAMPUS

In 1968-69 200 groups met at the University of Maine's Orono campus, bringing a total of 19,445 people. The peak year for conferences was 1967-68 when there were 223 conferences attended by 22,400 people. The slight drop this past year is attributed to the establishment of a conference center at the University's South Campus in Bangor.

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS ENDORSE POST OFFICE CORPORATION PLAN

A spokesman for weekly newspapers told the House Post Office Committee in Washington, that he accepts the need for postal rate increases but they must be accompanied by reform such as the Administration's proposal to turn the post office into a government corporation.

Jack Lough, Albion, Neb., and president of the National Newspaper Association said that his members realize "conversion of the post office department to a corporation will mean an increase in what they pay for delivery of their newspapers."

"But the rate increases, without reorganization, are inevitable," he said, and "the result will have to be higher and higher rates for poorer and poorer service."

The NNA represents 7,000 newspapers the bulk of them weeklies. Lough is publisher of two weekly papers, The Albion News and The Cedar County News at Hartington, Neb.

The NNA voted recently to support the Administration's proposal to remove the post office from the Cabinet, operate it as a corporation under a nine-member board of directors and set up a separate board to adjust postal rates subject to Congressional review.

Lough warned, however, against any attempt to weaken the self-management proposals in the corporation plan and said it would be "better to abandon the corporation concept than to emasculate it."

WHITE MT. NATIONAL FOREST TIMBER OFFICER TO RETIRE JULY 25

Elmer G. Kelso, Timber Staff Officer on the White Mountain National Forest, will retire from the U. S. Forest Service on July 25, after 24 years of Federal Service, according to Robert R. Tyrrell, Forest Supervisor.

Mr. Kelso graduated from the University of Maine in 1927. For the first five years after college he worked for the New England Power System in Littleton, N. H. He then joined the U. S. Forest Service, and was employed on the George Washington National Forest in Virginia and the White Mountain National Forest in New Hampshire. At one time he was District Ranger on the Pemigewasset Ranger District of the White Mountain National Forest at Plymouth, N. H.

When the 1939 hurricane struck New England, Mr. Kelso was transferred to Northeastern Timber Salvage Administration in Claremont where he oversaw salvage of the hurricane-damaged timber. Later, in the Boston office of the Northeastern Timber Salvage Administration, he was engaged in the largest timber sale ever made in the United States, consisting of 600 million board feet of lumber salvaged from the hurricane.

During World War II Mr. Kelso served as an officer in a Field Artillery unit stationed in Germany. He left the Army as a Lieutenant Colonel.

Following the war, he spent ten years as Chief Forester for Hollingsworth and Whitney in Waterville. While there he started the first American Forest Products Institute Tree Farm Family in the Northeast.

Mr. Kelso then spent a few years with the James W. Sewall Company of Old Town as a Consulting Forester.

In 1950 he went back to work for the U. S. Forest Service as a Timber Staff Officer on the White Mountain National Forest, the position he now holds.

Mr. Kelso has been a leader in the Forestry profession. He has been the Timber Management Editor of the "Northern Logger and Timber Processor" since the magazine's inception in the early 1950's. Mr. Kelso is a past Secretary-Treasurer of the New England Section of the Society of American Foresters.

Elmer Kelso and his wife now live in Lanconia, N. H., but plan to move to their retirement home in Jacksonville Beach, Fla., this September.

They have two grown children. Their daughter, Joan Riley, lives in Gifford, N. H., while her husband serves in Viet Nam as a major in the 25th Infantry Division. He will return to the States in late August as an ROTC instructor at Kansas State University.

John Kelso, Elmer's son, graduated from the University of Missouri, majoring in Journalism. He is currently working in Laconia for the Manchester Union Leader.

TELSTAR REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

GUIDANCE DEPARTMENT

The Guidance Department desires to present the topic for discussion of "The Relationship of Guidance to the Community in SAD 44".

This message will be directed to parents and the public. The latter term applies to the taxpayers who do not at this time have children attending public schools in SAD 44. This article will be presented in three installments, July 24, July 31, and August 7.

The next Guidance topic to be presented will be on August 14. If the readers of this column desire a specific guidance topic to be discussed you are invited to send a comment to the Guidance Department at Telstar, in care of Mr. Glazier. The Relationship of Guidance to the Community in S. A. D. 44.

Parents are only one section of the "public" which public relations must involve, but parents are one of the most important aspects because they make one of the largest and most powerful parts of the community that deals with the school. A good public relations program that gains the support of the parents can be of great value to the guidance department. Parents who support the guidance program encourage their children to do the same.

Public relations are vital to survival because parents are entitled to know the services offered, why, and how they are used. Truthful and continuous information is more valuable than high pressure or periodic relations.

Often parents who have undesirable attitudes toward the guidance departments and the work it performs may not be aware that they possess such attitudes. They may not realize that they are relating these overt expressions to their children, and this may cause a deteriorating effect upon counselor-student relations and reduce the effectiveness of the guidance department. One of the greatest values of public relations is in the changing of these adverse attitudes. Preconceived ideas, and misunderstandings concerning the guidance department may be changed when parents learn more about the department. The guidance department has an obligation to inform the parents and promote understanding of aims and what the department is doing.

Contacts with parents may be indirect and direct. The most rewarding contacts are those that are personal. It is by means of these personal contacts such as parent interviews, parent groups and specific guidance programs to which parents are invited that the most valuable public relations can be established and maintained. Even though many first contacts with parents do nothing more than build rapport, this is valuable for future relations.

Organized parent groups are essential to progress. They are the source of many parent resources. Parent group discussions can help parents find answers to their questions. A good public relations program between the guidance department and these parent groups can be of great value to both counselors and parents. Parent groups can guide and influence public opinion. This is valuable when there is a need for public consent for adequate financing. Parents understand and consent to support guidance only if facts and ideas are available for discussion. This is where a public relations program is necessary.

The purpose of this discussion is to itemize the values of public relations involving guidance counselors and parents. These values are both tangible and intangible.

This report is restricted to values only and not techniques. It is limited to values of public relations with parents as promoted by parental contacts through individual conferences and interviews, group meetings, and parental group organizations.

Public relations becomes very valuable in correcting misunderstandings concerning objectives and aims of the guidance department and of the whole school. After counselors have defined their roles and functions, they must communicate this to their publics. Since public relations must be continuous, the counselor must explain the purposes and methods of his work whenever he feels there is a need to do so.

The counselor's traditional role has rapidly grown outmoded and ineffectual. Continually making contact with parents and carrying on good public relations will aid in this role changing. The activities and duties of the counselor will grow if he can adequately explain to parents his work. If parents understand the aims, objectives, and roles of counselors and their functions, they will be likely to support an increase in guidance activities.

Both the parents and school contribute to the development of the child. Good parental contacts that provide added information for both parents and counselors will aid immeasurably in attempts to help the child. Good parental contacts that provide added information for both parents and counselors will aid immeasurably in attempts to help the child. With a mutual exchange of information parents and counselors acquire knowledge of the pupils. In this way both home and school are better able to meet the needs of the pupils. Common objectives and plans for attaining them may be reached when good relations exist between counselors and parents.

Two necessary qualifications that a counselor must possess for interviews with parents are a sincere interest in their child and personal warmth. When the parents can see and feel these during the interview, a big step has been taken in the promotion of good public relations. The basic value gained then becomes a willingness for parents to participate, communicate, and interact so that both counselor and parents gain a mutual insight. Parents who participate in guidance department activities can see the recognition and provision for individual differences and will thus value more

GREENWOOD CITY

Mrs. Edith Morgan Corres.

The road of life winds on we know not where and memory is the only way that leads us back to youth. Childhood memories come and go and I renewed one this week — an old county road. Most fifty years ago it was truly rustic, dusty, winding and rough. It wound on its way where flitting shadows frolicked under green arched trees. Then in horse and wagon I clapped along. Dad by my side on his way to work and I to drive the horse back home. We had left the Tubbs District through a pass under the railroad, continuing on over Bacon Hill through a forest to the now Greenwood City road leading toward Tubbs District and West Paris.

This present day road was built in 1921 or '22 under the supervision of George Cole. As I talked with one of the "boys" who worked there, he told me of how the land was so steep at Dug-Out Hill they had to make heel tracks to hold themselves in place before starting work. When the pass was made through so that a car could go, Roland Hayes drove his 1921 Model T through to fulfill the request of George Cole who had said "I want to be the first to ride over it."

The "City" end of the old county road over which I wended my way on by gone days is the way I traveled this week but not with car or horse but on foot. Two sisters, my brother-in-law and I set out. Destination? Greenwood Pot Holes.

The first minutes the road was clear and easy traveling. Then a moment of hesitation, searching, wondering! But the tracks made by wagon wheels; symbol of an era long past could be seen in spite of the alders! Those good for nothings, so persistent that they grow everywhere, yield limply to the bite of an ax and smack back in your face; the same wagon track over which so many years ago I traveled under different circumstances.

We picked our way through a pathway of loveliness, a woodland cathedral where nature's mood was gentle and quiet. We inhaled the balmy fragrance seeing a bit of sunshine here, a lacy shadow there. And always I turned back in mind and marveled at this old road, remembering the motion of the wagon, the sound of the wheels as they rattled and clattered along — early morn — Dad and I, monarchs upon our throne — sunshine warm upon our heads.

Shortly we reached our change of course, the railroad which we must follow to the Pot Holes. First I stopped to view the river on the far side where once the bridge spanned it, only the abutments now remain. The same bridge I used to cross and until a short time ago spanned the same river miles below. In memory my horse and wagon clattered upon its wooden planks as I watched the water flow.

Then up track we walked for a short distance and reached this tremendous piece of nature — no trail except memories — and started exploration. Greenwood has its ice caves but cannot rival this other wildness of Nature's creation.

Every stream sang its own song. Every boulder put in place more thoughtfully than the stones of temples. Some streams were completely dammed, forming a mysterious circular abyss while others roared on through deep canyons or formed underground rumblings above which your voice could scarcely be heard. Thus the rough places were made smooth, worn down, over centuries. With braced nerve and some times with hesitation we climbed among them watching the surge and roar in the rapids while there was calmness in others — music and poetry in rock piles, harmonious notes in the song of the water. Fascinating!

The landscape around was enriched with groves and gardens of trees. At the ornamental base to the cliffs and boulders where we picked our way through the swamp to get a picture of the falls among the finely proportioned ferns we found a unique surprise; a yellow iris! There was just one group alone in all this area. I had never seen a yellow iris in the wilds and can not find one in my flower book. We left it undisturbed and continued on, feet soggy, but we accomplished our purpose. The view of the falls here was far richer in the boiling clouds of spray, bursting forth in irregular spurts as if from the earth's heart, now and then sending a burst of white far beyond the others, lawless and stormy. The lighting added beauty to a glorious power among the hushing tones of the pines.

After spending an hour or so we made our way to the side, back to higher ground, a lunch, a hot trek down the track then again the coolness of the old country road and reclaimed memories of these "convulsions of nature," mysterious and savage.

Callers this week at Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Morgan's have been Ruth Hastings, South Paris, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan.

The red and blush roses on my front lawn are lovely, the red ones came from Sunday River before I can remember and the blush ones from Concord, N. H., when I was seven years year old. My grandfather, Peter Bennett 2nd, was Representative to Legislature then.

Claude Linnell Sr. was at the Linnell Camp at Aziscoos Lake over the week end.
